

BPI (British Recorded Music Industry) Limited

Application for membership 2010

The British Phonographic Industry Limited (the BPI) is a non-profit-making association set up by record companies and companies carrying on associated trades in the United Kingdom, to provide members with a convenient means to discuss matters of common interest between themselves and to provide a medium to represent the British record industry in negotiations with Government departments, relevant trade unions and other interested parties, and generally to promote and protect the welfare and interests of the British record industry, including the taking of all action which the association may consider necessary on behalf of members of the association.

The BPI endeavours to give practical assistance to all its members, but cannot undertake to provide legal and related services to an individual member company.

The BPI is a limited company, limited by guarantee, which effectively means that each member - in addition to paying an annual subscription - guarantees the BPI's liabilities up to a maximum of £1.

FULL MEMBERSHIP

Full membership is open to all UK record companies that own or exclusively license UK sound recording copyrights. Companies that are not controlled by one of the major record companies can join as separate independent members. The annual subscription for independent members is £67.50 plus VAT = £79.31 (normally £75 plus VAT but we are offering 10% discount in 2010) plus 5% of PPL UK distribution payments. The annual subscription for independent members who are not PPL members is also £67.50 plus VAT = £79.31.

ASSOCIATE MEMBERSHIP

Companies that do not own or exclusively license UK sound recording copyrights are not eligible for full membership but can join as associate members. Associate members obtain the same benefits as full members but are not allowed to put forward candidates for election to the BPI Council or vote at the AGM. The annual subscription for associate members is currently £500 plus VAT = £587.50.
